4000 DEER KILLED IN STATE DURING OPEN SEASON

Vermont Becoming Recognized as Happy Hunting Ground for Sportsmen

There were no fatalities and only one accidental shooting during the recent deer killing season.

When the returns are all in it is evident that the total number of deer killed this year will be in the vicinity of 4000. There have already been officially reported in Windham county leads. None are reported from Grand Isle and returns are not yet completed.

Commissioner Leavens in a recent interview suggests that he is in favor of amending the present law, and will ask the legislature to change the present law, to protect the deer. If this is not done he is afraid the deer will be exterminated.

In this connection it will be of interest to recall that a number of sportsmen living in Rutland and Bennington counties, including the late Senator Redfield Proctor, years ago, raised a fund with which to purchase deer and start a wild herd in this state. They secured 10 from a park in New York which were released in the southern part of the state. From these came the thousands that have been shot and the many more that are at large in Vermont since the first open season in 1896.

During the recent open season some remarkably fine specimens were secured.

Daniel St. George of Charlotte was the only hunter to capture a ten-necked buck. It weighed 200 pounds when dressed.

Gay Putnam of Guilford had the easiest hunting job to be reported as he was able to shoot his deer from the kitchen door of his home.

One of the largest deer killed was a eight point buck shot by Mrs. Lena Clark of South Fairlee.

The deer hunters did not leave the monopoly of wild game in the Vermont woods. For example, Robert Holington of Bethel varied the list by bagging three fat ones, whose fur was in prime condition.

Lyman Church of Cabot caught a wild cat in his trap Friday which weighed 11 1/2 pounds.

Clayton and Clyde Eaton of West Dover recently shot a 250 pound bear.

Color Blind, Books Won't Tally.

A curious instance of extreme color blindness recently came to light. A post office clerk could never balance his accounts. Examination proved that he was unable to distinguish between the colors of the stamps he sold.
